Concept Note: Social inequalities and the significance of regionalism in India always hit every citizen. It also provoked to writing the literature or in general thoughts. Regional inequalities are the resultant of various factors and due to its nature our society represents an ism, which may we called regionalism. Since independence we are fighting to recover our equality but the nature of our society demands something different. The basic issues or factors behind the regional disparities are socio-economic condition, political development and historical explanation. So the culture and the behavior of human being are categorized by its environment and practices. In view of the development and empowerment we have faced various act, regulation and policies but somewhere we need to be more compact and to be assimilating our culture with proper conservation.

The present seminar invites draft debates and inspectional insights from researchers, Scholars, PG students and Academician regarding regional disparities, regionalism, and historical perspectives of regional resources and the challenges behind it. It welcomes academic discussion and ideas regarding social discrimination, tribal culture, regional developmental issues and the inequalities in India. The issues regarding various parameters in accordance to the socio-political development and
